Funding is now available through Stream 1, Indigenous Capacity Support, of the Indigenous and Stakeholder Capacity Fund. Funding is available to support activities in 2 categories:

- Indigenous Knowledge, land use and other related studies: projects to collect baseline data in regions where nuclear facilities currently exist or may be proposed in the future
- Staffing and internal resource support: funding to help Indigenous Nations and communities coordinate engagement activities, reviews, assessments, and other related work with the CNSC

This funding will help support Indigenous Nations and communities in building the capacity to participate in the CNSC's regulatory processes, programs, policies and initiatives more effectively. This funding is provided outside the context of specific licensing processes, environmental assessments, or participation in Commission proceedings.
