Competing Rights: What You Need to Know!

The Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) and Hicks Morley are offering timely and important training on a matter we know has been a point of focus at council tables across Ontario: competing human rights.

AMO members are often faced with complex issues that seem to pit rights of one group against the rights of others. What do you do when faced with this? AMO and Hicks Morley are providing training that will help you negotiate these sensitive situations including what you, as an elected official, need to do to fulfill your human rights obligations.

This 3-hour virtual event is focused on the perspective and realities of elected officials and will fulfill the following learning objectives:

- Build your understanding of the purpose of the Ontario Human Rights Code
- Provide an overview of the Competing Rights Framework (what does it mean and how to apply it)
- Important considerations for municipalities
- Discussion on Hot Topics
- Interactive opportunities for questions and answers.

AMO is pleased to invite its members to join Njeri Damali Sojourner-Campbell, Associate with Hicks Morley for this workshop.

Ms. Damali Sojourner-Campbell's work is focused on employment, labour and human rights in Hicks Morley's Toronto office. In her role, she also provides strategic advice and representation before administrative tribunals and courts as well as legal advice to clients on complex equity and human-rights-related matters.
